Returning to the Celebration of Public Mass

Today we will celebrate the Mass at CTK in person for the first time since March 15. We are also aware of our obligation to respect the dignity of every human life. Because of this, and out of a sense of Christian charity, we must celebrate the Mass with restrictions for the time being. The general dispensation from the obligation to attend mass will continue until further notice. Please pray about whether you should return to the public celebration of Mass at this time, consider what is in your best interest and also, from an attitude of Christian charity, consider what is in the best interest of others as well. Please do not put yourself or others at risk by attending Mass. Those who are elderly, vulnerable or ill should continue to worship from home. EVERYONE must wear a mask. The ushers will be at the church with instructions.

The second collection this weekend is for The Office of Communications, which serves the diocese by keeping the faithful informed about issues surrounding our local Church and the Catholic Church around the world. Please be generous.

King's Angels Annual Multi-Family Indoor Yard Sale Rescheduled

Because of the current coronavirus situation, The Indoor Yard Sale is rescheduled for late July or August. We are storing the yard sale items in the fellowship hall right now. So clean out those closets and basements and bring us your previously loved items. Please call (270) 237-4404 to make sure someone can open the hall.

Ascension Sunday (Year A)
Sunday, May 24, 2020
Matthew 28:16-20

The tenor of this final command of Jesus to the disciples is markedly ecclesial in harmony with that character proper to the “ecclesiastical gospel” of Matthew. Their “mission” that is to know no limits in space or time has as its specific aim “making disciples,” bringing all people to adherence of faith to the person as well as the teaching of the Christ. They are also to administer Baptism to them in the name of the Trinity as a seal upon their personal adhesion to Jesus and as an external sign of their belonging to his family. The accomplishment of these directives, however, is inseparable from the observance, in theory and practice, of the evangelical precepts. The final assurance of Jesus regarding his unceasing assistance of his disciples, his enduring presence within his Church, is a resumption of the theme of “Emmanuel” (“with-us-is-God”), recalled by the Evangelist at the very beginning of this “Christian history of salvation” (cf. 1,23). This theme engages again and applies to this new Christian reality that which can be called the fundamental dogma of Judaism, i.e., the divine Shekinah, the presence of Yahweh in the midst of his people (cf. Deut. 4,7). The consummate message is that Jesus, with this solemn affirmation, presents himself in precisely the same manner: the vivifying principle and propelling center of the community of the redeemed. It is with this heartening assurance, while omitting any hint of the ascension and the descent of the Spirit, that Matthew concludes his gospel.
